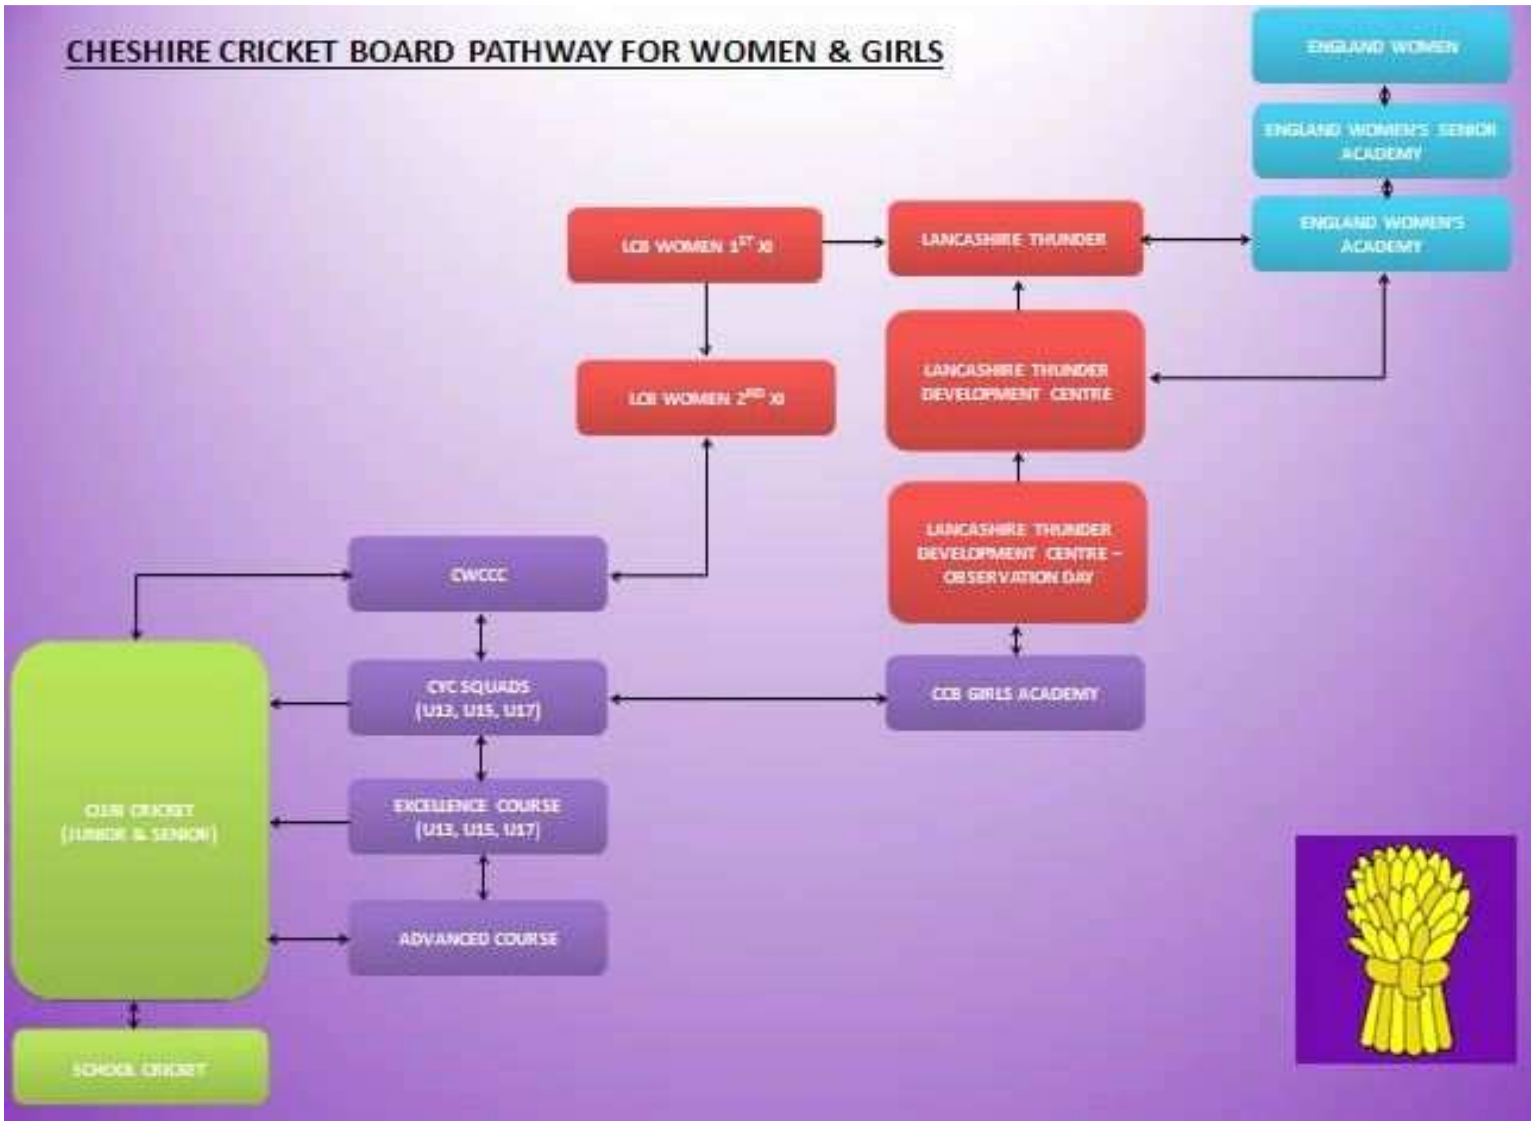
CHESHIRE CRICKET BOARD WOMEN & GIRLS PATHWAY

Cheshire Cricket Board (CCB) has re-designed its pathway for Women & Girls (W&Gs), hoping to clarify the opportunities available to players in both participation and performance environments.

The pathway has been re-designed in association with the Cheshire Women's Cricket League (CWCL), the Cheshire Women's County Cricket Club (CWCCC) and Cheshire Youth Cricket (CYC), with insight gained from representatives of both Lancashire Cricket Board and the ECB.



Growth in participation cricket, structural changes within CWCCC and changes to the England Women's Development Pathway brought about the re-design.

The pathway aims to show how the CCB's Development Pathway supports club cricket , but also captures the opportunities available for high performing players through CCB's Girls Academy & the Lancashire Thunder Development Centre.

Changes are also seen at the top, with opportunities for representatives of CWCCC to be involved with the newly formed LCB Women's 2nd XI.

Jess Lewis, Women & Girls Development Officer for CCB said: "Women's & Girls cricket in Cheshire is continuing to grow, and it's important we have an infrastructure in place to support schools, clubs and most importantly, players".

James Hendry, Head Coach of CWCCC said: "Credit to all of those involved in the design, as I believe it offers a clear picture of the opportunities available to female players at clubs, on our development pathway and in performance environments".
